Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies

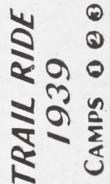

BULLETIN No. 56

TRAIL RIDE OF 1939

At last the High Line Trail from Banff to Lake Louise is on the map. The inaugural ride this Summer proved it to be the most spectacular trail hitherto laid out in the Canadian Rockies, and the numerous parties that have since ridden over it agree that great credit is due to our organization for having made this route possible. The Executive Committee had some anxious moments when it was found, just five days before the Trail Ride started, that a mile of rock-slide on the west side of the summit of Whistling Pass would be dangerous to horses if a new trail were not made. Fortunately Mr. Angus, Superintendent of Construction for Canadian Pacific hotels was able to spare a gang of trail makers from work being done near Sherbrooke Lake, and this last gap was bridged the day before we arrived. It was fortunate that the rains came in the early part of the month, as the passage of 150 horses churns up a wet trail in no time. There were some awkward spots, but careful riding and surefooted horses carried us through. The only accident was the lot of the Government warden assigned to look after us on the precinct west of Twin Lakes. He is a first rate guide and excellent rider, and everyone was relieved and glad to hear that the fall was not so bad as was at first reported. The responsibility of handling so large a party over a trail that was mostly new was great, and much credit is due to Claude Brewster and Ed. Ogan, our outfitters.

The wealth of photographs available has made selection difficult. Others will be reproduced in the next Bulletin.

UP AND DOWN THE ROCKIES !

THRILLS OF THE ROLLER-COASTER AS TRAIL RIDERS TACKLE THE HIGH-LINE TRAIL

By Ivan Petrushka

When the worthy trail committee of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, numbering such mountain-wise citizens as Jim Brewster, Byron Harmon, Major P. J. Jennings, Col. Phil Moore, Walter J. Nixon, George Vaux, J. M. Wardle and Warden Bill Potts, began telling prospective members of the 1939 ride about the "High Line trail", they distinctly weren't fooling!

Up in the Rockies when they say "high", they mean "high".

Mountain cayuses long have been suspected of being at least one part mountain goat, and the patient, long-suffering ponies had ample chance to prove the plausibility of this suspicion as they climbed up steep mountain sides and slithered down the opposite slopes, carrying, in most cases, some mighty surprised and delighted riders.

The 1939 ride—said all hands and the ship's cat—can go into the record book as the best yet.

Riders who accompanied the cavalcades on earlier expeditions through those gorgeous Rockies may quarrel with this statement if they like, but there are enough old timers, charter members and others who have been on all the rides to vote the 1939 outing of the organization into first place.

To begin with, the whole journey was spectacular in the extreme. To those bold, fearless souls who hung by their eyebrows to the walls of cliffs to cut the trail in the first place should go some kind of decoration for hardihood and heroism.

Had they set out to build a mighty natural roller coaster from Sunshine Camp to Moraine Lake they hardly could have produced any more ups and downs than the trail presented as it climbed up through fragrant pine forests, past burbling mountain streams and cut over lofty, windswept passes to what seemed like the roof of the world. To most of the riders, in fact, it was the roof of the world.

Scattered throughout the length and breadth of Canada and the United States, and across the turbulent Atlantic are right at this moment riders of the trail who are undoubtedly still recalling the sense of rapture they felt when they rode up the slopes of Simpson Pass for that memorable, breath-taking view of the Pharoah Peaks away out there across the void, and with Scarab and Egypt lakes glittering like jewels in a magnificent setting.

In many respects it was something of a four-ring circus. So much to see, so much to do, and all around probably the most spectacular scenery in all the Rockies.

For years they had been threatening to give us the "High-Line" trail, and much was expected of it. Yet it surpassed all expectations.

The 1939 ride set a record for attendance, and Outfitters Claude Brewster and Ed Ogan, who was assisted as usual by his son Chet, were called on to supply an outfit of 154 horses to handle riders, cook camp, duffle, bedding and tents and teepees. The two capable outfitters, however, met the challenge fully and provided a smooth-running organization which kept meals on time and every camp in apple-pie order.

The ups and downs of the trail, too, though naturally taking a lot out of the horses, presented no undue hazards, and beyond the first few mental misgivings even the lowliest tenderfoot felt at home in the saddle.

In fact one newcomer overheard a rider making the remark, "I am never so much at home as when I'm in the saddle", and he adopted it as his own. "I am never so much at home as when I'm in the saddle", he would say of an evening around the cook tent "But what a terrible home life!".

Despite the size of the outfit, there was nothing unwieldy about the 1939 ride. Riders kept well together with old timers and guides strung out well along the march to check the trail, watch for loose girths, lost articles and any other minor mishaps, and President Dr. C. Wesley Prowd, of Vancouver, wise in trail lore from his medical student days when he worked as guide and wrangler, proved a capable and genial leader.

Busses took the riders from Banff to the end of the motor road on the trail to Sunshine Camp where the skiers cavort in the winter season, and there the outfit saddled up for the five-day outing.

Despite the big group to be provided with mounts, bridles and saddles, the saddling-up took a surprisingly short time, and the cavalcade was moving along smartly by 9.30 a.m.

The trail followed Healy Creek up to Sunshine Camp where the riders dismounted for lunch, and in the afternoon crossed towering Simpson Pass to Egypt Lake where the outfit camped overnight.

Undoubtedly a highlight of an outing literally ablaze with highlight was the view from Simpson Pass right out over limitless space, southward to Mount Assiniboine, Matterhorn of the Canadian Rockies, and to all directions where a surging sea of mountains lay at everyone's feet. Across the void Egypt and Scarab Lakes hung like jewels on the sides of the Pharoah Peaks, and even the most uninitiated could see in the strange geological formation of these peaks how their discoverer recognized such similarity to the pyramids.

As a camp site, Egypt Lake proved a happy inspiration. Some of the party decided to go swimming, found the water cold but stimulating. Others rode or hiked leisurely to Egypt Lake or Scarab Lake to cast a fly, and a few returned with some nice rainbow trout for the cook to fry for breakfast.

Night fell and a big Rocky Mountain moon hung overhead, so close it seemed you could have reached up and knocked it down with a teepee pole. George Fisher unlimbered his trusty guitar, snug out a few of the popular trail ditties and some cowboy songs. They piled more wood on the big fire and the portable organ was whipped into action for some more of the old trail songs. Stars hung all over the heavens, and noise came from some of the teepees where some convivial visiting was taking place.

A few hours later there were no stars, no moon and no music, but instead there was a smell of bacon and coffee in the air. Some one sung out, "Come and get it", and six strong men were knocked down in a stampede for the cook house.

Claude Brewster and the Ogans finally got the herd to milling around, restored order and breakfast proceeded in a more or less orderly fashion.

There was more of the "ups and downs" of life ahead for the riders on that second day's march, but the trail for the most part lay through scented pines, along bubbling creeks, and it was cool and cheerful for horses and riders alike. The cavalcade went up a steep one right over the top of rocky Whistling Pass and reached beautiful Shadow Lake for lunch. There was a spectacular ride over Gibbon Pass that afternoon bringing the outfit into another beautiful camp site at Twin Lakes. There was not quite room enough right at the lakes for such a big camp, but the lakes lay very close and again swimming and fishing filled in the evening and earlier morning hours.

Of the ride over Whistling Pass, the riders have pleasant memories, though not a few of the horses may be expected to wince a bit when they recall that surging drive to the top.

The first day's lay over a route long familiar to mountain voyagers. It is ninety years since the Hudson's Bay explorer, Sir George Simpson, crossed the pass which now bears his name. Second and third days of the trail, however, followed trails that were specially blazed and cut for this high-line route to Moraine Lake, from Egypt Lake over Whistling Pass on the second day and from Storm Mountain to Taylor Lake on the third day.

The trails, cut by National Park wardens and with the aid of the Canadian Pacific Railway's trail cutters attached to Chateau Lake Louise, literally climbed the mountains and rolled down the other side. Here were no gentle rises along watercourses but sheer "ladders" up the mountain face where the game cayuses plunged ever upwards.

At Taylor Lake, high up in the larch country, was the ideal site for the third night's camp, and there the riders spent their fourth and "free" day, for fishing and bathing at the lake, and sightseeing trips into the surrounding country.

In a high wide valley surrounded by towering peaks, the tents and teepees looked tiny and insignificant and when the wind came up, as it did shortly after the riders made camp, there was more than a little excitement. Tent pegs were torn from the peaty ground and many a rider rolled from his sleeping bag to make jury repairs in the middle of the night.

In fact, the incident plunged the camp into a good-natured turmoil, but the pegs were soon back in place and the burst of gusty weather failed to dampen the spirits of a group which was having the time of its life.

Distinguished, too, was the 1939 ride for as fine and jolly a bunch of outdoorsmen—and women, ever assembled in one camp. Good sportsmanship and jollity were evident on all sides, and the campfire sessions yielded many an impromptu "turn". Old timers like Col. Phil Moore and Dan McCowan were on hand to describe the country through which the riders, many of them making their first horseback journey through the hills, were passing.

Camera enthusiasts had a field day shooting some of the finest pictures of their lives. At Egypt Lake alone, looking down from Simpson Pass, the Eastman and Agfa boys would have licked their chops to see the yards of film being exposed.

Two popular young members of the party were the honeymooners, Mr. and Mrs. Alasdair Fraser, of Montreal. Enjoying at least a novel wedding trip, the young Montreal couple had plenty to do. The groom is an ardent cinematographer who was "shooting" the trip in color film.

Also making color photos of the ride was Maxwell F. Coplan, of New York, contributor to Saturday Evening Post and American Magazine. As the riders swung over the high line trail, the Saturday Evening Post appeared with a Coplan article full of Coplan pictures. It was entitled "Cod and Canvas", and dealt interestingly with the fishing industry at Gloucester, Mass. Photos of the 1939 trail ride doubtless will find their way to the pages of one of the leading American periodicals.

Other cameramen were the "hardy annuals", Dan McCowan, R. H. Palenske, the noted Chicago etcher, and Carl Rungius, whose photos have adorned previous Trail Rider bulletins.

The weather man could hardly have been in a kindlier mood. Sunshine alternated with warm, clear nights, and only one morning, the fifth, did the cook arise to find the water pail filmed with ice. At the last camp, a windy day failed to put a crimp into activities, as the riders hied themselves to nearby scenic spots for rides and hikes, fishing and swimming parties.

One memorable feature of the outing was the constant build-up, scenically speaking, which was felt by all the riders. After the first day's ride and that unforgettable view from Simpson Pass, it seemed that all the country ahead could offer nothing but anticlimax. Far from that, however, each day brought its own quota of surprises and scenic thrills; the climb over Whistling Pass, the trek over Gibbon Pass to Twin Lakes, the ride to Taylor Lake, the camp at Taylor Lake and finally the last day into Moraine Lake and the Valley of the Ten Peaks.

It established one thing clearly; to see the Rockies you must ride high up. As far as the High-line is concerned, that's the ticket for future rides.

democratic cook camp were evident as the riders gathered at Moraine Lake lodge for their pow-wow August 2nd.

Many were the hearty handclaps and words of good wishes as the party broke up, some for Lake Louise, others for Banff, but meanwhile there was the pow-wow with its speeches, election of officers and cowboy and trail songs.

But many a rider left Moraine Lake camp knowing part of his heart remained behind on that high-line trail.

May there be many more of them!

A NARROW ESCAPE

The numerous friends of Nicholas Morant will be glad to hear that he is reported as well on his way to recovery from the injuries he received late in September at the claws of a grizzly bear. The adventure appears to have occurred on an expedition to Daly Glacier to investigate possibilities for summer skiing. Accompanied by the Swiss Guide, Christian Haasler, Nick came across a grizzly with her cub. As the bear made for them, both men took to trees. Christian was caught by the leg and hauled down, so Nick climbed down to the rescue, only to be himself attacked in turn. Both were severely mauled, but were able to reach the hospital at Banff with the aid of a rescue party from Field. Nick is recognized as one of Canada's outstanding photographers, and we all hope he will be with us on the trail again another year.

REGINALD TOWNSEND CUP

Trail Riders who took part in the Banff-Moraine Lake High Line Ride are reminded that a handsome silver cup was presented by one of our Charter Members, Reginald Townsend, of New York, formerly Editor of "Country Life in America", for the best photograph taken on the Ride and submitted for adjudication. This adjudication is made by three competent critics, none of whom is a Trail Rider, and a replica of the Cup suitably engraved is awarded to the winner, whose name is inscribed on the original. Prints should be sent to the Secretary-Treasurer, Room 324 Windsor Station, Montreal, without any other identification of the sender than a nom de plume, the name of the photographer being enclosed in a sealed envelope, on the outside of which the nom de plume is written. Entries should be sent in not later than February 1st, 1940.
